

HE'S LOSING IT: Christian's receding hairline

WHAT'S UP TOP, DOC?

TV medic's secret hair transplant

EMBARRASSING Bodies TV doctor Christian Jessen has an embarrassing issue of his own—he's had a secret hair transplant.

The vain star of the popular Channel 4 show had the £4,000 op to thicken his thinning mop of floppy blonde locks.

Christian made sure the procedure—which involves taking hair from the back of the scalp where it's thick and implanting it where the hairline is receding—was kept hush-hush.

He even travelled from his London base to a clinic in Cheshire to have the four-hour op so he wasn't spotted.

A source said: "Christian had it done just a few weeks after he first did a piece on Embarrassing Bodies about hair transplants.

"He is totally thrilled with it, he loves admiring his new fuller hair in the mirror."

Christian, 33, who wears his locks in a distinctive curtains style, shot to stardom three years ago on Channel 4 show Supersize vs Superskinny. He now advises patients on treatments to cure a range of delicate problems on Embarrassing Bodies. And he has a GP clinic in Harley Street where he first consulted a neighbouring specialist about his baldness before travelling to Cheshire to have the hair transplant in May last year.

BY JANE ATKINSON

The source added: "The surgeon transferred hair from the back of his head into the bald bit at the front. It took several months until you could see his hair was getting fuller."

Last night Christian confessed to the News of the World: "Having talked to patients who had hair transplants on Embarrassing Bodies, I decided the time was right to get it done. I'm delighted with the results".

jane.atkinson@notw.co.uk

RETURN OF THE MOP: It's back after op